Made from 90% Verdejo and 10% Viura this is a vital and refreshing white which carries out aperitif duties like a seasoned professional while looking utterly ravishing at the same time. Keen, racy, citrus-soaked and tangy, this is an elite Spanish white wine.

For a step up, a modern classic – and longstanding favourite of mine – is Telmo Rodríguez Basa Blanco 2018. This one is made by one of Spain's best known winemaking talents, and is 90% verdejo with a dollop of viura – it's beautifully sleek and elegant.

Verdejo is sometimes spoken of as Spain's answer to sauvignon blanc but it is less shouty. This is a great example, boosted with a dollop of viura – broad like a fat blade of grass, with flavours of lemon peel and green peach. The perfect aperitif.
